There's also been some more concerning tweets from the BPCF vice chair (goes under the moniker chopsie or chopsy if you are interested) that conflict with her position as vice chair.

[REDACTED]

I think the best solution for us would be that the new forum chair will deal with this in the appropriate manner.

Instead of an apple 🍏 a day, how about a survey a day?! ✍️

We need to hear back from parents and carers about how local services are working. We need to know the good 😊 the bad 😞 and the ugly 😡!

We will be sharing this information with Ofsted when they come back to reinspect SEND services in Bristol.

We have 5 surveys, the first is about accountability in Bristol - please make your voice heard!

✍️ You can complete this 5-minute survey online:
<https://forms.gle/PZJE43UnAKirQCZ28>

🗣️ Or you can come to an online event and tell us:

Has the child you care for:

- Been discriminated against?
- Experienced any type of exclusion?
- Received a full time education?

[REDACTED] This will be from Jen Smith I think. I'm not sure I'm comfortable with the phraseology of the first tweet [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]. The content of these tweets is as follows: -

Unlicensed and unregulated' ALP provision is springing up by 'unscrupulous people' offering 'damaging provision'. Gets better and better...

"The majority of pupils in alternative provision do not have an EHCP." Bristol's head of AP in a Sendias meeting right now.

In the zoom/ground rules sent out to attendees prior to our events, we do ask participants to: -

'... please 'be kind' and respect the confidentiality of all participants.'
